A Traveler Taken With Cholera Morbus.

While Mr. T. J. Richey of Atchison, Mo., was traveling in Kansas he was taken violently ill with cholera morbus. He called at a drug store to get some medicine and the druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He bought a bottle and took it. The result was immediate relief, and a few doses cured him completely. It is made for bowel complaint and cholera, and is never fails. For sale by Hettiger Bros. and Van Warden's Pharmacy, 328 North Main.

KANSAS TO THE FRONT.

With a Fast and Improved Train Service to Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and the World's Fair.

Commencing Sunday, May 14th, the Missouri Pacific railway placed in operation a new train to St. Louis, Chicago and the World's Fair.

The new train, No. 402, leaves Atchison daily at 6:30 a. m.; Wichita, 9:30 a. m.; St. Louis, 10 a. m.; Chicago, 12:30 p. m., arriving at Kansas City at 5:45 a. m., making direct connection with fast Missouri Pacific trains to St. Louis, and with all lines to Chicago.

This is probably the most satisfactory and serviceable schedule placed into effect between points in Southern Kansas and the north and east, and places the state of Kansas on an equal footing with other states in the matter of train service to the World's Fair. An elegant equipment is used in the make up of this special and everything is looked after that will add to the comfort of the passengers. For further information in regard to rates, routes, maps, time tables, etc., address nearest Missouri Pacific agent, or H. C. Townsend, general passenger and ticket agent, St. Louis, Mo., or P. & T. SUMMER BEDDING.

A Few Helpful Suggestions for the Warm Days to Come.

Very few housekeepers now make any change in their winter and summer bedding. The hair mattress is generally considered to be the best and wholesome for winter as well as summer use. Many people prefer a hair bolster, especially in summertime, which is commended by the best authorities as heating to the head.

Within the last decade various fragrant pillows have been introduced. Some nervous sleepers find that pillows of the balsam fir will induce a restful sleep. The fragrance of the balsam tends to soothe the nerves in the same way that the fragrance of lavender does, and it was probably due to some such idea as this that the herb lavender was always carefully dried by the old-time housekeeper to strew among the sheets and pillow-cases. According to some hygienic authorities the natural wool of the camel, which grows under the hair about the neck and forelegs, makes an especially soft, cool and wholesome pillow. Although it has a slight natural odor, it is not at all disagreeable on that account.

For summer bedcovering a light blanket of pure wool is certainly the first choice, where the cost is not a matter of moment. Next in choice to this is a light comfortable made of wool or patent cotton, which is simply a good quality of cotton held together by stitches, so that it may be easily unrolled in sheets of even thickness to make comfortable. The best covering for these comfortable is a silkette, or fine, fine, chamois cloth, which is tied down with bright-colored cords. The old-fashioned comfortable, tied down with heavy cotton tufts, is completely a thing of the past. The edge of the comfortable is generally turned in, run together and buttoned, and the covering is made to match the tufting. A linen pillow-case and bolster-case is a summer luxury, but most persons prefer a fine cotton sheet to one of linen on the ground that it is more wholesome.

It is a mistake for housekeepers not to provide sufficient bedding in the summer. At the seaside and the mountains chilly nights most often succeed the most sultry days, and there should always be a light blanket ready to meet such an emergency. The summer bedding, however light it may be, should be thoroughly aired, and where it is possible, laid in the sun occasionally. —N. Y. Tribune.

"When I gave you ten dollars to go shopping with this morning, Lucinda," said Mr. Roshquill, sourly, "you said you would furnish me a suggestion for a saravastie editorial."

"Here it is, Henry," replied the editor's wife, sweetly, submitting for his inspection several yards of material she had purchased for the stores of her new dress. —Chicago Tribune.

seems they can unflatteringly smell a man six hundred yards and beyond with the most astonishing exactness. Their tenacity of life is beyond all conception.

I have frequently seen an antelope with one leg shot away and hanging by the tendons alone, outrun and escape from the fleetest plains ponies. Their race is not a long one (seldom beyond six or seven miles), and it is possible that an American horse of good speed might run them down, but as a rule nothing on the prairies can catch them, and the greyhound is about the only four-footed beast in existence that can be depended upon to keep pace with and possibly outrun them. No animal in the world possesses a keener sight, except the greyhound.

A SCIENTIFIC COURTSHIP.

Beginning with Ague and Running the Gamut of All the Diseases.

"Do you know a very tall, dilapidated man, who comes to the club every afternoon with his arm in a sling, sits in the corner, yawns and reads the 'Lancet'?"

"Know him! Know Wallis, my dear fellow? I knew him seven years ago, when he first accepted the chair of biology at Leicester. At that time he was a monument among men, an athlete, and a breaker of records."

"And now?"

"Now he is the wreck you see him; he leaves his bed at noon, comes down in a bath chair, stays two hours, and goes home to be nursed."

"Consumption?"

"No, his story is brief, unique, but very tragic. Two years after his election to the professorship he fell in love with the rather 'blue' but lovely daughter of old Dr. Dolamore, the lecturer on bacteriology, and he (the girl's father) consented to their engagement on one condition—namely, that the wedding should be postponed until both had by vaccination protected themselves against all known zymotic diseases. 'You see,' the old fellow argued, 'a man's first aim for the sake of those dependent upon him should be self-preservation, as also the wife's; and vaccination is the basis of all security—it is life insurance made actual, and euthanasia reduced to a certainty. Death in some form or other lurks at every street corner and peers through the bars of open drains, waiting for the unprotected. Typhoid comes in with the morning milk, and measles joins hands with the children as they play kiss-in-the-ring at the Sunday-school picnic. I will intrust the future of my daughter to no one who has not put on the whole armor of salvation woven of modern research!'"

"And Wallis?"

"Well, Wallis consented. Apart from his intense devotion to the girl, this new theory quite corresponded with his own conviction; and so it was arranged that the two of them should on the following Monday start their crusade against germ diseases—taking them alphabetically. They began with ague, by the end of the first two months they were half-cured through the first lecture, and they spent their Christmas holiday in the throes of an induced asthma amid bronchitis kettles, wheezing their love through the steam."

"At what stage are they now?"

"Well, not together. At first they kept company moderately well, but parted at chow; since then first he has been alone, and then she has been alone, passing each other as it were with a nod and a word of sympathy. Just now the lovely Ethel is a long way ahead doing hydrophobia in Paris, while he is still grappling with his G's."

"When do they hope to finish?"

"I asked Wallis the other day and he tells me that, given good lymph and some luck, the whole thing should be over in about four years, but the course of the system lies in the new discoveries that are made annually. Wallis had, only last month, to go back to fish poisoning, the germ of which some German dropped on, and only yesterday the microbe of hay fever was differentiated."

"But here comes Wallis, he looks worse than ever. I'll go and speak to him."

"I thought as much from the black coat and hat band."

"What?"

"Ethel Dolamore died yesterday of blood poisoning in Paris."
